Announcements

AXO Alumni Julia Lindenthal (USC '08) has started her own blog. One of her biggest goals in life is to get published. In order to get her work "out there" she started a blog on blogger.com called "The Know It All New Yorker" which focuses on a number of different topics ranging from television programs that spark reflection in her own life to New York ideology that pertains to all of us. She is reaching out to the AXO Alumni network looking for anyone who knows publishers, literary agents, PR people, etc. who they could introduce to her. Julia can be reached at lindenth@gmail.com

Gamma Gamma members can share information on apartment sales/rentals, look for roommates, sell a car, look for a summer house rental, look for a babysitter, etc. If you would like to have your message included in the announcements or posted on the website please contact Monica at communication@nycaxoalum.com
